THE NOBILE OFFICIUM

The Extraordinary Equitable Jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts of Scotland

Stephen Thomson

with a foreword by Lord Hope of Craighead

The nobile officium is an equitable, rather than a strictly legal, jurisdiction. It provides the courts with a discretion to grant a remedy on the basis of justice, fairness and equity, in the spirit of the law rather than its letter.

This is the first dedicated study of this extraordinary and unique jurisdiction. The text brings together the many applications of the nobile officium and provides commentary, analysis and rationalisation. It offers general guidance on how and when the nobile officium might be applied.

Local Planning Reviews in Scotland

Andrew Ferguson and John Watchman

Local review bodies ('LRBs') have the power to review proposals which may, or have been, determined by planning authority officers. There have been significant criticisms about the policy and the law underpinning LRBs, and there is still something of an experimental quality to the system.

Local Planning Reviews in Scotland is a practical guide for all those involved in the local planning review system, including applicants for review and their agents; planning authorities, government officials, local government officers, solicitors, surveyors, architects, and planning consultants.

CROFTING LAW

Derek Flynn and Keith Graham

Recent legislative reforms aim to secure the future of crofting by sustaining and enhancing the population of crofting communities, improving local involvement in and accountability for crofting administration, and safeguarding land held in crofting tenure.

Key features include:

- introduction of crofting community right to buy
- reorganisation of the Crofters Commission
- registration of crofts and common grazings
- regulation addressing neglect and absenteeism
- new provisions for decrofting and resumption.

This is the first text to cover the Crofting Reform Acts of 2007 and 2010 and the Crofting (Amendment) (Scotland) Act 2013.

Scottish Arbitration Handbook

David P Parratt and Peter Foreman

This is a practical guide to the Arbitration (Scotland) Act 2010. Using the legislation as a framework, it combines explanation of the Act and the Scottish Arbitration Rules with informed commentary on how the conduct of arbitration in Scotland is likely to develop and analysis of the concepts that have developed in other jurisdictions.

The authors draw on their experience to address the issues that commonly arise during arbitration, and interject 'Practical Points' throughout the text.

LAND REGISTRATION

Kenneth GC Reid & George L Gretton

The law governing the Land Register of Scotland is substantially recast by the Land Registration etc (Scotland) Act 2012. The Scottish Government's target is for all titles to have migrated from the Register of Sasines to the Land Register by 2024.

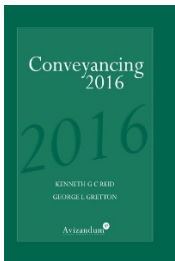

Professors Reid and Gretton, who as Scottish Law Commissioners were responsible for designing the new system, have written an authoritative guide to the 2012 Act and the new procedures.

Conveyancing 2016

Kenneth GC Reid & George L Gretton

The latest volume in the series offers a full and authoritative account of conveyancing law and practice in Scotland during the year 2016. It is an essential guide for practitioners to this fast-moving area of law.

The authors analyse court decisions on topics as diverse as missives of sale; tenement repairs; servitudes; wayleaves; land registration; positive prescription; standard securities; the community right to buy; judicial rectification; break options; the effect of errors in notices; the application of personal bar to oral leases; tenancy deposit schemes; and special destinations. Particular attention is given to enforcing real burdens, servitudes of parking, Keeper-induced registration, and e-conveyancing. There is consideration of the Land Reform (Scotland) Act 2016 and the Private Housing (Tenancies) (Scotland) Act 2016, and a review of the increasingly complex pattern of property taxes in Scotland with an emphasis on the additional dwelling supplement.
